

Dear Mom, Pop, and Harv,

To bring you up to date.

We in "F-Troop" goofed off over the weekend. Monday we got up at 0900 sat around till 0600 at which time we eat. From there we went to a testing station where we finished the rest of our test. From the testing we went to the pay station where we got a $10⁰⁰ flyers there we also filled out insurance papers and etc. From there to personal interviews. The interviewes gave us the results to our test and told what we were qualified for. I was told I qualified for officers training school and that I would be a army Draftsman. Then at a briefing on officers Training School they told us if we wanted O.T.S. we would have to re-enlist and also if ~~we~~ what we wanted to do in the army would take more than 4 weeks to kiss it off if you were drafted. So most of us told them to stick it.

Here at the training center we met our Drill Sergeant, who is a real swell person. Here all we do is march and pull dirty work. Monday is our official starting date for Boot. Till Monday all we will do is have a P. T. test, march, Pull detill, and waste time. Does that sound like fun?

It stays cold here. Right now there are clouds in the sky. I feel like I am catching a cold, but it could be a reaction to the shots. My arms are sour still. We got four shots Tuesday. One in each arm with air guns, one with a needle, and a small Pox Vac. Also a lump of sugar. The shots didn't hurt at first but.

That it for now.
